Guidelines for Applicants to the 2025 Master's Program Graduate School of Frontier Sciences The University of Tokyo

• Examinations may be switched to an online format due to the impact of COVID-19. If changes are made to these guidelines, we will publish the changes on the Graduate School website so please check it regularly.

(Graduate School Website: (<https://www.k.u-tokyo.ac.jp/en/>))

For non-Japanese applicants

Foreign nationals who are newly entering Japan to enroll in a graduate school must, in principle, have landed in Japan with the status of residence, “Ryugaku (student)”, by the date of enrollment. Please refer to the subsequent section (11. Notes, (7)) for more information.

In order to have your status of residence determined upon landing, you will need a Certificate of Eligibility (CoE). Host institutions will apply for CoEs on behalf of prospective students and will become ready to start the application procedures only after successful candidates are notified of admission. CoEs are usually issued three months after host institutions file applications. Therefore, non-Japanese applicants planning to newly enter Japan are fully expected to choose “April Admission” in the entrance examination Schedule A, and “October Admission” in the entrance examination Schedule B (Please refer to “1. Admission Period”).

Purpose

Established in 1998 through a comprehensive cooperation of all departments and divisions of The University of Tokyo, the Graduate School of Frontier Sciences (GSFS) embodies a new transdisciplinary field, created as an independent research entity, providing master's and doctoral degree courses only. GSFS aims to take up the challenge of finding solutions to current key issues restricted by the very framework that separates the fields of science and technology, by adopting entirely new standards, which will allow for integration among conventional academic fields. In the past, science has overemphasized the quest for scientific truth in strictly defined fields of study, frequently overlooking interrelationships between the different fields resulting in a narrow overall perspective. GSFS considers it essential to further intellectual pursuits addressing today's reality by creating a new disciplinary field that embodies an overarching view of several disciplines, allowing in-depth recognition of their interrelationships. In order to confront this challenge resolutely from a new and unique perspective, GSFS defines “fusion of academic fields” as its basic philosophy and offers educational and research opportunities in the unexplored areas that would otherwise be restricted by existing academic fields. This program is for “fully globally minded” students desiring to explore emerging concepts requiring a cross-dimensional viewpoint, with highly developed problem-solving capabilities.

This document is a translation from the authoritative Japanese version.
